WOMEN IN ARCHITECTURE

Dhruhi.J.Patel, 8th Sem

Women in architecture are breaking walls—both literally and metaphorically. From designing futuristic skylines to weaving culture into spaces, they bring fresh perspectives that blend form, function, and emotion together. Pioneers like Zaha Hadid sculpted gravity-defying structures. Her work goes beyond blueprints—it tells stories, and redefines how we experience spaces. As more women step into architecture, it is evolving into a more inclusive and dynamic art form. The future of design is not just built, it's imagined, nurtured, and brought to life.

COLORFUL CHAOS AT VSAP

Y.Ramya, 8th Sem

Usually known as the "Festival of Colors," Holi is an endearing festival for most of us. Undoubtedly it is one of the most unforgettable festivals, etched in our memories each year. On March 13th, 2025, students of VSAP came together to celebrate Holi after the college hours. The colorful atmosphere served as an escape from the regular academic routine and strict deadlines. Students of 3rd and 4th years seized the opportunity to enjoy the cheerful event, splashing colors on each others faces. It was quite amusing to witness the students transform from being all sincere and studious in the morning to more lively and child-like tricksters during the bright-colored event. The event began as a gentle start but soon turned out to be a whirlwind of colorful chaos. The parking lot was brimming with echoes of laughter and joyful cheers of those students drenched in colors. Those vibrant colors, wild chases, messy and playful smearing of colors on each other's faces flipped back pages to childhood days. Setting aside their worries and fears, the students unleashed their inner child to enjoy the lively and colorful mess. It was an endearing memory for all the students who took part in that lively celebration and the teachers and staff who stood there admiring their students immersed in colors.

SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF THE 3RD SEMESTER WITH PERSISTENT HARD WORK

M. Rahithya, 3rd Sem

As the semester came to an end, we felt a sense of accomplishment fill us. The last few weeks of the semester were packed with deadlines, submissions, exams, and most importantly – "THE DESIGN JURY." The design jury held on the 19th of this month felt like plating the dish, after months of preparation and cooking, working on every flavour, and every possible detail. Another challenge was to finish models for the jury, which took a lot of patience to cut, paste, paint, and show details in the model when we were running out of time. As students of architecture, we had to spend sleepless nights giving more attention to our design portfolios- those endless last-minute changes and the fear of not completing before time. On the day of the jury, i.e., 19th March, all of us did our best with confidence in our work and successfully crossed another level of our adventurous journey.

STUDENTS CORNER

WOMAN: THREADS OF HER HEART

In the abyss of a maiden's heart, dwelled a realm of mystery.
Fierce and untamed thoughts,
Gliding through the depths;
Rising ahead with time,
as the waves in the storm.
In the realm of mystery,
Lied pearls of tenderness.
That shimmered at bliss,
And adorned the scene.
In the pearls of tenderness,
Hid a whisper of silent grief.
Hitting the shore in pain,
And quietly roaring within.
With her patience great as the earth,
She weaves the tapestry of lives,
Embroidering it with the intricate motifs
Of love and compassion.
